Counting Shapes

Turning wheel reveals numbers; shapes match the numbers (circle has one line; star has five points). Embellished with a tracing pattern, the hand appears and disappears in a spin. Hidden text for parents too!

Word Maker

Pull one egg and up pops another! Children and adults alike relish making a mental cause/effect map. Older children recognize letters and the dozens of words that can be made.

The House That Jack Built Puzzle

Puzzle with no loose parts! Each puzzle piece can be inserted in a window, or perpendicular to create a roof with smokestacks. Puzzle knobs have picture prompts to read "The House that Jack Built" text.

Wave Wheel

This turning wheel creates a delightful, soft rain stick sound as it goes 'round. Many "w" words can be found following the wheel's whirling path. Plus mom's will appreciate that their name upside down spells "wow".

Mirror Mosaic

Babies love mirrors! And so will older children when they can explore their faces in teal, midnight, blue, and purple acrylic mirror segments. Sparks conversations too!

◀ One to Many Match

One-to-many matching game teaches shapes, color, letter recognition, critical thinking, sequencing, and fine motor skills. Encourages interaction between caregivers and children—with many ‘right’ answers!

Dancing People ▶

Handcrafted hardwood figures dance. Teaches cause and effect; when one is pulled down, the other figure jumps up. Sing a song: “Head, Shoulders, Knees and Toes, Knees and Toes”

◀ Convex Mirror Kaleidoscope

Convex mirror fascinates young children! Plus a kaleidoscope viewer adds a new perspective that is sure to entertain and delight. A perennial favorite among babies too!

Hungry Caterpillar Match ▶

Pegs can be matched between the caterpillars’ tummies in many combinations (by color, shapes, type, etc.) Removable backs allow libraries to add their own content!

◀ Spinning Stories

Each spinner has four pictures, creating dozens of stories about a baby’s party. Who came? Which present did they bring? What was inside? How did the baby react? Encourage talking and playing with this panel with no one “right” answer.

◀ Color Mixing Wheel

Play with two turning wheels to align red, blue, and yellow lenses to make all the primary and secondary colors. Watch the colors flicker and reveal themselves in the unique reflective tile. Only understood through play, children often show parents how it works!

Baby on the Bus ▶

Designed after the favorite song, baby rubs his eyes. Encourages caregiver and child to sing along with the text content on the panel. Great as part of a "Wheels on the Bus" set, especially for a book mobile.

◀ Wipers on the Bus

Second in the series, the wipers "swish" back and forth revealing fun, textured "rainy" window. Turning wheel allows kids to play bus driver. Sing-a-long text included. The landscape seen through the wipers can be changed by library staff too!

Animal Sounds ▶

As the wheel spins to reveal animals, the wheel text prompts, "What is it? What does it say?" Also breaks animal names into beginning and ending sounds for phonological recognition. Additional text for parents about how children learn sounds.

◀ Hickory Dickory Dock Clock

Ideal for a range of ages, the clock features two turning wheels, basic number identification, and eventually learning to tell time. Nursery rhyme text wraps around clock face and a mouse turns to run up and down the clock!

◀ LEED Panel

Highlight the renewable resources and eco-friendly materials used in your library with an educational matching game about reducing, reusing, and recycling. Standard panel includes denim insulation, flax seed linoleum, rubber tile, and recycled glass tile.

Dancing Frogs ▶

Handcrafted hardwood figures dance. Teaches cause and effect; when one is pulled down, the other figure jumps up. Sing a song: "Two little speckled frogs..."

◀ Riddle Spinner

Set up a riddle station with the Riddle Spinner panel! This activity is great for shelving end panels and areas that target the school-aged audience too! The question as well as the answer can be changed by library staff.

Fish Tales ▶

The spinners have four pictures, creating dozens of fish tales. Where was it? Which bait? What kind of fish? How big? Invites a conversation as patrons spin a new story. There's a routed tracing line too!

◀ Baby Texture Panel

Discover textures, shapes, colors, mirrors, and fine motor skills with baby! Baby Texture Panel is perfect for a quiet and cozy baby nook. Designed to be simple, older children move past this panel quickly to play with others.

◀ Joke Spinner

Set up a joke station with the Joke Spinner panel! This activity is great for shelving end panels and areas that target the school-aged audience too! Libraries often pair this with a joke suggestion box and can change out the jokes daily, weekly, or monthly!

Mary, Mary Panel ▶

A sweet, simple panel to encourage the nursery rhyme. Flowers spin and bees bumble! The littlest patrons enjoy the three sizes of flowers to spin.

Nature Matching ▶

Many-to-many matching game between objects found in nature from your community! Encourages interaction between caregivers and children—with many 'right' answers! This panel can be customized for your community, contact us for collection instructions.

◀ Shape Matching

Build shape recognition skills while sorting and matching the six major patterns in nature. Multiple correct answers spark conversation and curiosity! Learn the six patterns too: branching, packing, spiral, explosion, meander, and fractals.

◀ B is for Bugs

Burgeon Group artist, Sarah Hurwitz's bug drawings were so captivating, we made an interactive panel with a bug viewer to sort butterflies, bugs, and beetles. A visual and (ugh) buggy delight!

◀ Magic Magnet Spinner

A three point spinner makes magnets twirl under centrifugal force. But most parents and kids think it is magic! Watch as children and parents alike play with our newest toy invention.

Magnet Board ▶

Finally due to popular demand, we offer a simple magnet board. It has window cut outs to explore what happens when magnets are placed on wood. Great in a series of four for a larger wall too!

◀ Felt Board

By popular demand, the artisan made garden felt set is available for small libraries. Stitched together, this set will last if hand washed in Woolite. Artist Leslie Rottach's creations generate ooh's and ah's every time we see corn silk or peas peek from a pod.

Whisper Magnetic Gears ▶

Finally, durable, movable, quiet magnetic gears. These non-pinching gears are strong enough to stick to a magnet wall, but gentle enough to move without pinching fingers. Ask for a description sheet.

◀ Toy Book Return

Babies and toddlers select their own books when they play with this toy book return! Best ordered along with additional board books as circulation will increase. Recommended only for libraries with browsing board book collections. The most popular interactive we make!
